How to Live – PEACEFULLY – on a Damaged Planet

Andreas Oberprantacher
University of Innsbruck

What does it mean to live peacefully on a planet affected by war, ecological damage, and colonial violence? This presentation explores peace as an ongoing practice shaped by shared living conditions, examining co-habitation and more peaceful ways of living with humans and non-humans, envisioning a pluriversal peace that embraces diverse ways of life.

The Future of European Citizenship Education. Best Practices and Virtuous Examples.

Tiziana Faitini
University of Trento

The presentation explores the GrACE project, which develops citizenship education responses to climate change. Drawing on international webinars and residential courses organized by the project with educators and experts across Europe, it presents guidelines promoting active learning methods to strengthen civic engagement and reimagine citizenship education as a driver of democratic participation and sustainable social change in the European Union.
