to deepen your understanding of the historical and philosophical roots of our ecological crisis.

This webinar will explore the historical and philosophical roots of our current ecological crisis, tracing how concepts of 'nature' have evolved from ancient Greek thought to modern scientific perspectives. By exploring the ideas and values that shape our relationship with the natural world, the session connects with the ambitions of the European Green Deal to rethink the way societies respond to environmental challenges. We'll examine the impact of socio-political structures, emotions like eco-grief, and cognitive approaches in envisioning potential futures beyond this time of crisis.

MODERATOR: Tiziana Faitini

This webinar is one of several initiatives carried out by GrACE – Green Europe: Active Citizenship and the Environment, an international teacher training programme led by the University of Trento. It aims to provide educators with comprehensive knowledge of environmental issues and the EU's strategies for tackling the climate crisis, along with innovative methods for teaching about green issues.

Participants with minimum 75% of attendance during the session will receive an official Certificate of Attendance issued by the University of Trento/JM Centre upon request.
